Title V

Mechanisms to Prevent and Control the Risk of Money Laundering, Terrorism
Financing And Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction

Chapter I

Due Diligence

Article 26. Proper Customer identification and reasonable verification of information and documentation. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and the Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, shall maintain, in their operations, due diligence and care to reasonably prevent that these operations are carried out with funds or resulting from Activities related to the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

The mechanisms for customer and/or final beneficiaries identification; as well as the verification of information and documentation, will depend on the risk profile of the Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, by considering the types of customers, products and services offered, the distribution or commercialization channels used and the geographic location of their facilities and their customers and/or final beneficiaries. These variables, either separately or in combination, can increase or decrease the potential risk posed, thus impacting the level of Due Diligence measures. In this sense, there are circumstances where the risk of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction is higher and stricter measures must be taken and in circumstances, in which the risk can be minor, provided that there is an appropriate risk analysis, simplified Due Diligence measures may be applied.

The Financial Reporting Entities shall ensure that documents, data or information collected under the Due Diligence process are kept updated, more often for the categories of higher risk customers.

Article 27. Basic Due Diligence Measures for Natural Persons Clients. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, shall take the following basic measures of Customer Due Diligence when it pertains to a natural person.

1. Identify and verify customer identity, requesting and consulting documents, data or reliable information from independent sources, due references or recommendations, as well as reliable financial profile information and/or transactional customer profile;
2. The non-financial reporting entities will identify and verify the identity of the client, asking and consulting documents, data or reliable information from official and independent sources.
3. Verify that the person acting on behalf of another, is authorized, in order for the Reporting Entities to proceed to identify and verify the identity of this person.
4. Identify the Final Beneficiary and take reasonable measures to verify the information and documentation obtained from each of the natural persons who identify themselves as the Final Beneficiary.
5. Understand and as appropriate, obtain information about the purpose and nature intended for the commercial and/or professional relationship.
6. Establish a financial profile, taking the reasonable measures to sustain the source of the funds, the frequency of the transactions and if the customer deposits cash, quasi-cash, checks or electronic transfers in order to be able to understand, at the opening of the account or contract, the usual behavior that the customer will have with the Reporting Entities.
7. Any new account relationship or contract must comply with an assessment of the financial profile and transactional customer profile, to calculate the risk of the products or services offered.

In the case of Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, the basic measures for Customer Due Diligence for natural persons will be limited to numerals 1; 2; 3; and 4 taking in consideration the relative importance and the identified risk.

Article 28. Basic Due Diligence Measures for Legal Persons Clients. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision shall take the following basic measures for Customer Due Diligence, when it pertains to legal persons and other legal structures:

1. Request the corresponding certificates evidencing the incorporation and legal existence of the legal persons, as well as the identification of officers, directors, agents, authorized signatures and legal representatives of such legal persons, as well as their identification, verification and address.
2. Identify and take reasonable measures to verify the Final Beneficiary using relevant information obtained from reliable sources.
3. In the event that the Final Beneficiary is a legal person, due diligence will prolong until getting to know the natural person that is the owner or controller.
4. Understand the nature of the customer's business and its shareholder and control structure.
5. The Financial Reporting Entities in general, shall take steps to prevent undue use of products and services offered by the legal person for Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.
6. The Reporting Entities that have legal persons as customers with bearer shares, or bearer share certificates, shall take effective measures to ensure the identification of the Final Beneficiary or who the real owner is and implement transactional Due Diligence so that these legal persons are not misused for money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.
7. When the Financial Reporting Entities have not been able to identify the Final Beneficiary, it will refrain from initiating or continuing the business relation or performing transactions when there is persisting doubt on the identity of the customer or of the Final Beneficiary.
8. Conduct the appropriate Due Diligence for natural persons acting as administrators, representatives, agents, beneficiaries and signatories of the legal person.

For Non-Financial Reporting entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, the basic measures for Due Diligence of the Customer natural person will be limited to numerals 1; 2; 3 and 8 taking in consideration the relative importance and the identified risk and specially when they are involved in a cash transaction with a client for an amount equal or over the amount established by the regulatory body.

Financial Reporting Entities shall take measures to prevent the misuse of legal structures, among others: Foundations of Private Interest, ensuring that there is adequate, precise, accurate and timely information, including information about the Final Beneficiary, the Foundation Board and the Founder.

The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision shall apply simplified Due Diligence, in the case of those legal persons that are listed in a stock exchange recognized by the Superintendency of the Securities Market.

Article 29. The updating of records as well as their safekeeping. The Financial Reporting Entities shall keep updated all information and documentation records of Due Diligence for both natural persons as well as legal persons; they will also safeguard the records of the transactions carried out for a minimum period of five years, counted as of the date of the termination of the relation, so as to make it possible to recognize them and reconstruct operations.

The Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by professionals subject to supervision, are equally obliged to safeguard the information and documentation on the terms provided in this article.

Article 30. Obligation of Policies and Procedures for Trust Companies. Trust companies will be required to establish the policies and procedures and the structures for internal controls, to prevent their services from being used improperly, for the offenses of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction and other related crimes or of similar nature or origin. The Superintendency of Banks will provide the framework for the scope, functions and procedures of the compliance structure.

Article 31. Measures of due diligence for Trusts. The Financial Reporting Entities shall take measures of Due Diligence to prevent that the Activities carried out by a Trust Company are not misused for Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

The trust company must make sure to understand, identify and verify the identity of the settlor and the Final Beneficiary of a Trust. Due Diligence will continue until recognizing the natural person, that is, the final Beneficiary.

Additionally, the Trust Companies must apply Due Diligence on customer activities, other than the business of the trust that it performs.

Compliance with these measures of Due Diligence will be monitored by the respective Supervisory Entity, in accordance with the guidelines established by this Law.

Article 32. The provision of information by Trust Companies. Trust Companies shall provide the information required from them by Laws, decrees and other regulations, to prevent the crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction. Likewise, they shall furnish the foregoing information to the Superintendency of Banks, if it so requires.

Article 33. Correspondent Services. The Financial Reporting Entities shall maintain Due Diligence measures enabling them to know financial institutions to whom they offer and receive correspondent services, as well as design controls to assure the nature of their operations in order to prevent them from becoming a vehicle for the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Financial Reporting Entities shall perform the following basic measures of Due Diligence to financial institutions that receive and/or offer correspondent service, as well as those that provide or receive services from accounts used for payments:

1. Gather sufficient information on the financial institution to allow them to understand the nature of their business and determine, from the available information, the reputation of the institution and the and the quality of the supervision, including whether or not it has been the subject of an investigation on Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction or a regulatory action of the country of origin or countries where it has physical presence or financial activity.

Article 34. The amplified knowledge of customers under the classification of Politically Exposed Persons. Financial Reporting Entities, Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision must adopt an extended or reinforced Due Diligence of the customer for individuals that come under the category of foreign Politically Exposed Person and Domestic Politically Exposed Person (either a customer of a Final Beneficiary), considering the high-risk profile of the customer, in accordance with the definition provided in Article 4 of this Law, so that appropriate risk management systems will be established and conduct a more profound Due Diligence that will include, among other aspects.

1. Having tools that will allow performing pertinent diligence to determine whether the customer of the Final Beneficiary is a politically exposed person.
2. For Politically Exposed Person, to obtain approval from senior management to establish (or continue, in the case of existing customers) business relationships with these customers, and when the cases are applicable for non-financial regulated subjects and activities performed by regulated professionals.
3. For the financial regulated subjects, to identify the financial and transactional profile of the Politically Exposed Person as to the source of the heritage and the source of the funds, and when the cases are applicable for non-financial regulated subjects and activities performed by regulated professionals.

4. Perform intensified continuous monitoring of operations throughout the entire business relationship.

Additionally in the case of the Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by professionals they must have systems in place to determine whether the customer or the final beneficiary is a Politically Exposed Person from an International Organization or family or close associate of any category of Politically Exposed Person (Foreign, National or International Organization); and in cases where the business or transaction relation is riskier, according to a risk analysis, the extended due diligence measures applicable to Foreign and Domestic Politically Exposed Persons will apply.

The reporting entities may not apply discriminatory treatment towards individuals who qualify as politically exposed persons, always that they could meet the requirements of enhanced due diligence required by the reporting entity.

Will not be considered as politically exposed persons individuals who occupy positions or subordinates of the categories mentioned in paragraph 18 of Article 4 of this Law. The period during which a person is considered politically exposed person will be from the time of his appointment until his dismissal and no more than the subsequent period of two years from the moment it ceases to perform the duties and obligations for which he was qualified as politically exposed person initially.

Article 35. Application of Due Diligence measures by third parties. For the implementation of Due Diligence measures, the Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, may resort to Compliance Agencies, to assist them in procedures for customer identification, identification of the Final beneficiary and understanding of commercial or transactional nature of the customer.

The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision are responsible in relation to the measures developed by the third party in the customer identification procedures, the identification of the final beneficiary and the understanding of the commercial or transactional nature of the customer.

Regulations should determine the criteria that this type of measures should include.

Article 36. Prohibition of establishing a relationship or conduct a transaction. When the customer does not facilitate compliance with the relevant Due Diligence measures, the Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision shall not open the account nor begin the business relation, or shall not make the transaction and may submit a report on suspicious activities.

Article 37. Dependence on third parties. The non-financial regulated reporting entities and activities of professionals subject to supervision may, at its discretion, to rely on the due diligence performed by a third party who, in turn, is a reporting entity.

Chapter II

Monitoring Business of the Customer

Article 38. Know the nature of the business of the Customer. The Financial Reporting Entities must:

1. Collect information from Customers in order to know the nature of the activities of their business or profession. The activity declared by the Customer will be recorded by the Reporting Entities, at the beginning of the business relationship.
2. Verify the declared activities of their Customers as provided in the regulations of this Law and, in any case, when circumstances concur in determining a special analysis of operations as provided in Article 41 of this Law, when the operations of the Customer are inconsistent with his declared activity, the financial profile, the transactional profile or his background.
3. Identify and know the Final Beneficiary in his database, with the firm intention of knowing the nature of his activities, the financial performance and the relation with other accounts or contracts.

Article 39. Continuous monitoring of the business relation. The Financial Reporting Entities must:

1. Keep track of the operations performed during the business relation to ensure that they are commensurate with professional or business activities and the financial and transactional profile of the Customer. The Financial Reporting Entities will increase surveillance when warning signs or behaviors with above-average risks are observed, by regulations or by the conclusions of the risk analysis performed by the Financial Reporting Entities.

2. Perform periodic reviews to ensure that the documents, data and information obtained as a result of the Due Diligence processes are kept updated and presently respond to the reality of the operations of the Customer.
3. Pay special attention to the financial and/or transactional profile compared to the reality of the movements in cash, quasi-cash, checks or electronic transfers.

The monitoring will be comprehensive, and must incorporate all the products and services of the Customer, the subscriber, the agent, the representative, the associate, the co-holder and the Final Beneficiary that keeps the account, contract or relation with the Financial Reporting Entities and, if the case be, with other corporations of the group, as well as those related.

The Prevention Manual will illustrate, according to the risk, the frequency of the document revision processes and the financial and/or transactional profile required for high-risk customers, or by the type of movement performed by the Customer.

This requirement will be evaluated and regulated by the relevant Supervisory Entity.

Chapter III

Essential Criteria

Article 40. Control designs for the Implementation of Preventive Measures on a Risk-Based Approach. The Financial Reporting Entities and the Non-Financial Reporting Entities must implement a risk-based approach, which involves an assessment of the products and services offered and to be offered to the Customers, as well as the geographic location in which the reporting Entities offers and promotes its services and products. The purpose of this type of assessment is to sensitize on the facts that must be controlled and the way to do it. In this sense, the Reporting Entities must:

1. Design controls according to the degree of complexity of Activities, which may provide different risk categories of the Customer, to attain adequate segmentation, established on the basis of the potential risk of unlawful activity associated to the accounts, contracts and transactions of the Customers.
2. Perform predictive analysis to sensitize on the risks that may affect the products and services, considering the probability and impact of Weapons of Mass Destruction, as well as related offenses and based on this analysis design appropriate controls to mitigate the observed risks.

3. Consider technological tools to add effectiveness to the functions of Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction. In this regard, the Reporting Entities depending on their size, level of assets, number of customers, geographical areas where they have presence, products, services and distribution channels, will endow their areas of control with technological applications that will facilitate:
 - a. Transactional follow-up, customer analysis and investigation for the detection and report of suspicious transactions.
 - b. Verification comparing with lists of local and international risks.
 - c. Customer segmentation in quantitative and qualitative terms with a risk-based approach.
 - d. Situational strategic planning.
 - e. Other areas and functionalities of interest to strengthen the actions of the Reporting Entities in the administration of risks related to the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

This requirement will be evaluated and regulated by the respective Supervisory Entity.

Article 41. Special assessment. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision shall analyze with special attention to, any fact, operation or transaction, regardless of its amount, which is considered unusual as provided in this Law. To this end, they shall, among other aspects:

1. Analyze the background and purposes of such transactions and document findings in written;
2. Apply enlarged or reinforced Due Diligence to business relations or transactions with natural and legal persons and financial institutions, from countries that according to the Financial Action Task Force do not apply sufficient measures for the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.
3. Check documentation and special and reference list on customer risks for the opening of accounts or the provision of services.

Article 42. Know your employee policy. Regulated financial subjects and non-financial regulated subjects must properly select and monitor the conduct of employees, especially those in positions related to the management and analysis of customers, money receiving, information control and key controls. Additionally, a profile of the employee must be established, and must be updated throughout the period of employment.

Employees must be trained to understand the risks they are exposed to, the controls to mitigate such risks and personal and institutional impact of their actions.

Article 43. Possibilities of exchanging information. Regulated financial subjects will appoint a suitable person in each of the institutions that constitute the Financial Group, the Economic Group or Business Conglomerate, so that they can exchange information between those with domicile in Panama. The terms and conditions to allow the exchange of information will be established in the regulations of this Law.

Article 44. Control measures for the free zones. Companies in the Colon Free Zone, companies established in the Panama Pacific Agency, the Baru Free Zone, the Diamond's Market of Panama and companies in Free Zones, shall design controls that allow them to secure the reasonableness of their operations in terms of knowing the identity of their counterparts in the chain of foreign trade, understanding the risks of Crimes related to Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

To comply with this Article, all operations must have the commercial detail to indicate the exporter, the exporter's country, the port of shipment, the importer, the importer's country, the port of landing and the reasonableness that the participants are related to the product traded, and the true origin of the product and the Final Beneficiary. The falsification of export documents will be considered as an aggravating factor in case of a conviction for the commission of one of the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

The previous mentioned companies shall refrain from making transactions with counterparts that are related to Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Furthermore, the previous mentioned companies must know the origin of the payments received in cash and in the format that the supervisory entity defines together with Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and eh Financing of

In this sense, the previous mentioned companies must report to the Financial Analysis Unit of any suspicion of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Article 45. Independent Evaluation. Independent evaluations on the effectiveness of controls may be made by external auditors or other independent experts with expertise on the matter. As a responsible practice, the Financial Reporting Entities must have ongoing financial internal audit procedures for the prevention and detection of Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction. To this end, the Internal Audit sector must be provided with a budget so that, as a third line of defense can exercise its role with independence and effectiveness, within the prevention system.

The independent evaluations Program shall focus on the risk determined for each area and its programs will vary according to the size of the Reporting Entities, the complexity, the scope of the Activities, the risk profile, the quality of its control functions, the geographic diversity, the number of products and services, customers, distribution channels, the volume of transactions and the use made of technology. The frequency and scope of each independent evaluation will vary according to the assessed risks. The results should help the Board of Directors and its Supervisory Entities to identify areas that have weaknesses and require tighter controls.

Independent evaluations should be made based on the risks identified for each area and must be made available to the Supervisory Entity. The external auditors or other independent experts with expertise on the subject should rotate, according to the provisions of the Supervisory Entity.

The personnel conducting independent evaluations on the Financial Reporting entities should be specialists in the subject and must have proven experience of more than five years with knowledge in the domain of local and international laws for the Prevention of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction, as well as on business operations that enables them to understand the risks to which Financial Reporting Entities are exposed.

For Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, the independent evaluations shall be regulated by the Supervisory Entity.

Article 46. Electronic transfers. The Financial Reporting Entities must ensure that information on electronic transfers includes the following:

1. The name of the originator.
2. The name of the beneficiary.
3. An account number for each or a unique reference number of the transaction.
4. Any other information required on the originator and the beneficiary and that it be precise. Such information must remain on throughout the payment chain and should be available to the competent judicial authorities, the Supervisory Entities and the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism, in order to assist them in the detection, investigation and prosecution of terrorist or other criminals.

Article 47. Obligation to provide Training. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, must give continuous and specific training to employees in positions related to the treatment, communication and managing relations with Customers and suppliers, receiving money, processing transactions, designing products and services and others personnel working in sensitive areas: such as Compliance, Risks, Human Resources, Technology and Internal Audit, enabling them to stay updated on the different typologies, cases and lodging on Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Supervisory entities must inform the National Commission against Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing and the Financing of the Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction on the guides oriented for the annual training of regulated parties, as they deem appropriate.

Article 48. Other measures. Financial Reporting Entities shall adopt rules for self-assessment of the degree of risks and other good practices for the prevention of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction, to the extent that such practices do not constitute a violation of legal norms, regulations, ingrained uses and customs or the rights of the customers.

Title VI

Preventive Freezing

Article 49. Preventive freezing. The Reporting Entities must proceed immediately to carry out a preventive freeze on funds, goods or assets, after receipt of the lists that for that purpose is issued by the United Nations Security Council, in accordance with the provisions of the Resolutions of the United Nations Security Council, numbers S/RES/1267, S/RES/1988, S/RES/1373, S/RES/1718, S/RES/1737 and all successive, or other Resolutions to be issued on the matter, in order to prevent the use of its products and services to commit acts of terrorism, its financing, as well as the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Public officials who, because of their position, have access to the information referred to in this Article, shall be obliged to maintain due confidentiality, even when they cease in their functions.

All public officials are required to report to the competent authorities any violation and/or deviation of the provision contained in this Article.

Article 56. Exemption of civil and criminal responsibilities. The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, when applicable, their directors, officers and employees will not be subject to criminal and civil liability for filing suspicious transactions reports or related information, in compliance with this Law.

The Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, when applicable, may not make known to the customer or third parties, that information has been requested or has been provided, including the delivery of the suspicious operation reports, to the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism, in compliance with this Law and other regulations in force. Non-compliance entails the application of the sanctions provided in this Law and its regulations.

Article 57. Protection and suitability of employees, managers and agents. The Financial Reporting Entities, Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, will take appropriate measures to keep confidential the identity of employees, managers or agents that have performed a communication or report to the internal prevention bodies of the Reporting Entities.

The authorities shall take appropriate measures to protect against any threat, employees, managers or agents of the Financial Reporting Entities, the Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, that communicate suspicion on Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Article 58. Legal Protection. The Director General of the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism and its respective officers, as well as officials of the Supervisory entities, and the person or unit responsible for serving as a liaison with Financial Analysis Unit and the respective Supervisory Entity shall be entitled to have their respective institution or employer cover the costs and expenses necessary for his defense, when he is subject to actions, proceedings, judgments or claims arising from acts or decisions adopted as provided in this Law, and in the proper performance and good faith of his powers, functions or obligations. The legal protection referred to in this article shall apply to such officials for acts done in the performance of their duties, even after having ceased in their functions.

If the officer is convicted and bad faith and malice on his part is demonstrated, he must reimburse the Institution, the expenses incurred for his defense.

Title IX
Sanctions

Article 59. Criteria for the imposition of sanctions. The Supervisory Entities will impose the administrative sanctions for violation of the provisions of this Law and its regulations, taking into consideration the seriousness of the offense, the recurrence and the extent of the damage caused to third parties.

The supervisory entities will establish the gradation of sanctions, a progression of disciplinary and financial sanctions, the power to withdraw, restrict and suspend the license of the Reporting Entities as well as the sanctioning procedure to be followed in accordance with the provisions of this Law and in special Laws. However, the power to cancel, withdraw, restrict, remove or suspend the license, certificate of suitability and other authorizations for the performance of Activities or operations conducted by Financial Reporting Entities, Non-Financial Reporting Entities and Activities performed by Professionals subject to supervision, will correspond to the appropriate regulatory body that granted it, at the request of the respective Supervisory Entity, on matters related to the Prevention of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction, who shall be authorized by this Law to request the authority that issued the license or permit, the cancellation thereof of the serious repeated violation of the provisions of this Law.

Article 60. Generic sanctions. Failure to comply with the provisions of this Law or those provided for its implementation by the respective Supervisory Entities for each activity for which a specific sanction is not established, shall be sanctioned for that event alone with fines from five thousand dollars (US$5,000.00) to one million dollars (US$1,000,000.00), depending on the seriousness of the offense and the degree of recidivism, to be imposed by the Supervisory Entities of each activity or at the request of the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism for any breach or late submission or incorrect reports.

Article 61. Specific sanctions. Supervisory Entities shall regulate the level of specific, proportionate and dissuasive sanctions that are available to deal with the natural or legal persons covered by this Law, in accordance with the relevant sanctioning powers granted by its constitutive Law or that creates them, that do not comply with the requirements to prevent the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

The sanctions should be applicable not only to the Reporting Entities, but also to those permitting or authorizing the breach of the provisions of this Law or those provided for its implementation by the respective Supervisory Entities, of each Activity.

Article 62. Progressive fines. In all cases in which the commission of acts in violation of the provisions of this Law and the rules for its implementation lasts over time, the Supervisory Entity can impose progressive fines until the violation is corrected.

Article 63. Corporate Responsibility. For the sole purpose of sanctions and the regulations adopted in its development, the Laws and conduct of management, officers, executives, administration or operations of the Reporting Entities, are attributable to the Reporting Entities and persons exercising activities on whose behalf they act.

On the other hand, natural persons, perpetrators of such actings and behaviors are subject to civil and criminal liability under the terms provided in this Law and the Criminal Code.

Article 64. Collection of sanctions. The sanctions for which collection has not been possible for reasons attributable to the sanctioned subject will be collected through the compulsory jurisdiction of each Supervisory Entity. Where there is no such function, the General Direction of Revenue, of the Ministry of Economy and Finance, shall proceed with the procedures for coercive collection. The results of the implementation process will be informed by the General Direction of Revenue of the Ministry of Economy and Finance to the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism.

Article 65. Destination of the Sanctions. The amount of the penalty imposed by the supervisory bodies will be referred to a special account of the Ministry of Economy and Finance for the purposes of training, procurement of equipment, information tools and other resources to combat money laundering, financing of terrorism and the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Article 66. Ordinary procedure. In determining violations and enforcement of the sanctions provided in this Law, without detriment of a special procedure, the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Law will also be taken into account.

Title X

Representation before International Organizations

Article 67. International Representation. The Republic of Panama as a subject of international law will actively participate in Regional and International Organizations specialized in the Fight against the Crimes of Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction.

The Executive Body shall appoint the governmental representatives to the Organizations linked to the Fight against Money Laundering, Terrorism financing and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction taking into account the nature and functions of the organizations and institutions of the Government of the Republic of Panama related to efforts in this matter.

In cases in which the representation is assumed by a different governmental institution than the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of the Crimes of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism, the latter will provide technical support as the entity is specialized on the subject.

The representation before the Egmont Group shall be exercised by the Financial Analysis Unit for the Prevention of Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism.
